SO BEGINS THE TASK-Stephen Stills

4/4 1...2...123 (without intro)

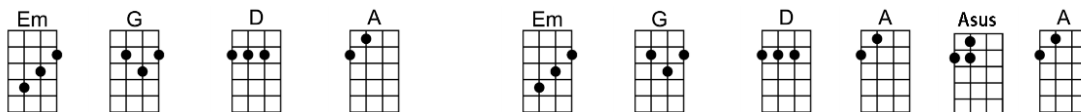

Intro: First line

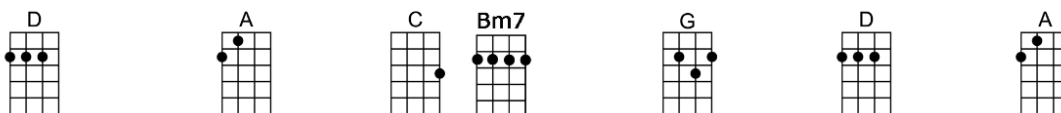

And so begins the task I have dreaded the coming of for so long

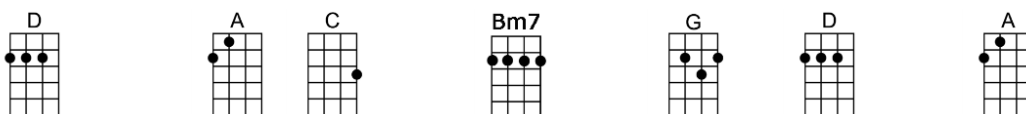

I wait for the sun to re-mind my body it needs restin'

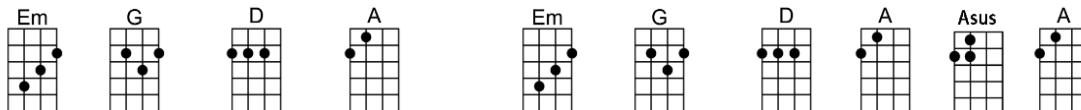

And I must learn to live with-out you now. I must learn to give only part somehow

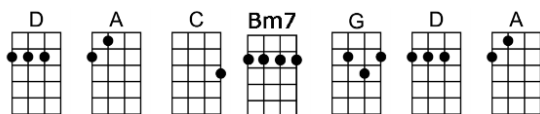

Camping on the edge of your city I wait, hoping someday you might see be-yond yourself

The shadows on the ceiling, hard, but not real, like the bars that cage you with-in yourself

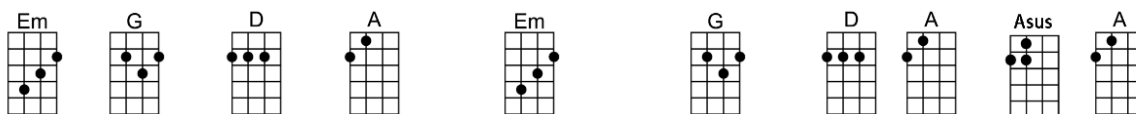

And I must learn to live with-out you now. I must learn to give only part somehow

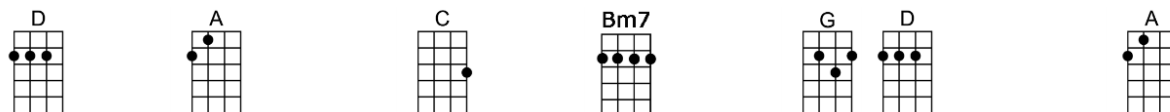

Interlude:

(X2)

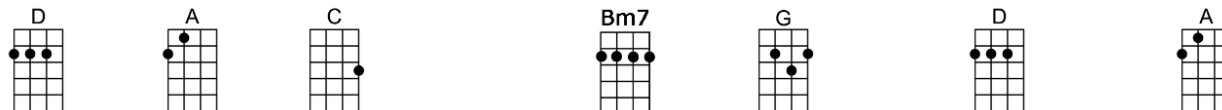

And I must learn to live with-out you now, as I cannot learn to give only part somehow

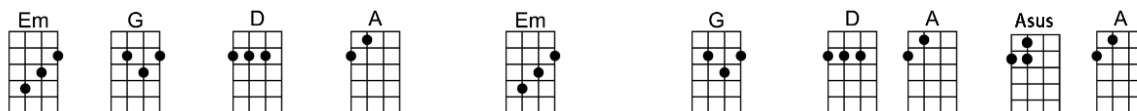

p.2. So Begins the Task

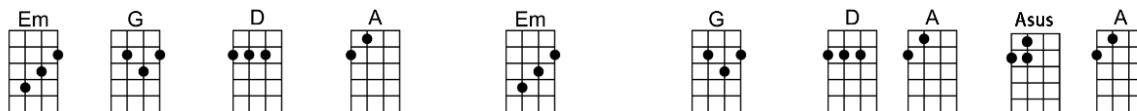

All of these cages, must, and shall be set a-side. They will only keep us from the knowing

Actors and stages now bow before the truth, and the love shared be-tween remains growing.

And I must learn to live with-out you now, as I cannot learn to give only part somehow

And I must learn to live with-out you now, as I cannot learn to give only part somehow
